

Program Specific Outcomes (PSO):

PSO 1: Graduates leave the institute with exceptional confidence in expressing themselves fluently and effectively, showcasing a command over communication that fosters clear articulation.

PSO 2: Students demonstrate the ability to engage meaningfully with individuals across different contexts, establishing connections that leave a lasting impression and strengthen interpersonal relationships.

PSO 3: The learner attains mastery in writing and speaking, alongside polished reading and listening abilities, positioning them advantageously for interviews, public speaking, and professional environments.

PSO 4: The graduate excels in diverse roles requiring communication expertise, including anchoring, teaching, legal advocacy, corporate communication, event management, creative writing, publishing, and translation between English and vernacular languages.

PSO 5: Students cultivate an aesthetic outlook on life, enhancing their own well-being and positively influencing others. They are also attuned to social issues, empowering them to act responsibly and ethically in their interactions with society.

PSO 6: Honours program graduates develop critical thinking, analysis, and debating skills, enabling them to mentor others in global literary studies and pursue advanced research or specialisation in diverse literary fields.
